ENGINEERING A PATHWAY:

A LUNCH WITH

Else Shepherd

Else was one of the first females to receive a degree in electrical engineering from the University of Queensland in 1965.

What she has achieved since has been outstanding with little regard for gender imbalances.

To celebrate, International Women in Engineering Day, we welcome our community to join together and hear about Else's incredible story including her pioneering spirit, challenges she has faced, and lessons learnt along the way.

Limited registrations available. Registrations include keynote presentation with Else Shepherd, followed by a networking lunch.
